

The latest in evolving workplace storage needs —

Creating personal experiences with food-delivery and dry-cleaning perks in your workplace.

Smart lockers, not just for parcel delivery. Smart lockers also enable a streamlined experience for delivery of food orders, dry-cleaning and much more. With an automated delivery process, delivery drivers deposit the item(s) into the locker and the recipients receive a text or email notification. The employee can pick their delivery up at their convenience. Smart lockers can range from your typical lockers to refrigerated lockers and even lockers for frozen items.

Staff no longer needs to keep track of your employees' deliveries throughout the day and your employees are excited to leverage this perk.

Make better use of everyone's time

Eliminate the need for staff spending time contacting the recipient of their delivery and keeping order of all the deliveries.

Convenience

The entire delivery process is automated — the system sends a notification via text or email to the recipient and tracks the package from delivery to pick up. Allowing the recipient to pick up their delivery when it's convenient for them.

Delight your employees

Whether your company culture is one of well-being and happiness or perks — creating experiences of hyper-personalization that delight your employees can go a long ways for employee retention.

When you start to think about storage in new and different ways, it becomes more than a simple locker — it's a way to enable a sense of ownership, communication, and function.

Design & Function

A variety of sizes and configurations are available, from standard lockers to refrigerator or chill lockers and even lockers for frozen items. It's the software integration that makes these lockers smart. The system will automatically notify the recipient via text or email that their delivery is ready to be picked up, when it's convenient for them. And if the recipient accidentally doesn't grab everything from the locker, the systems knows and will notify the recipient.

Expertise in evolving spaces and storage needs

Whether it's an office, a space for learning, or a residential building, we'll bring our knowledge of current and future storage trends to the table.

Support, installation, project management you can trust

Bringing the projects to life. With over 50 years of solving these challenges, we've mastered the dance and can flex and adjust when needed — making sure every project is successful.

Custom designs based on your needs

We treat every project as a unique one. The knowledge and experience we've gained combined with your needs to create a tailored solution to fit your present — and future.